Letter from Jodie

The Survey Said...

Since the start of the pandemic last March, we have worked hard to keep our fingers on the pulse of the business community here locally. We've done that in a variety of ways from phone calls, Zoom meetings, limited in person meetings (more recently), and surveys at several different points.

Last month, we asked you, our members, to participate in another 'pulse of the business community' survey, and we had responses from about 94 different businesses and entities, or about 10% of the invited participants. While this is not a scientific poll, it does start to give us some anecdotal evidence of what's happening locally.

A year later, is there huge job loss? We all remember last March and April and the 20% unemployment we saw as businesses had to shutter for the time being. Largely speaking locally, we have seen that huge number work down considerably – in February it was 6.2%. While this is still higher than the pre-pandemic number, it is much improved since the worst days. We asked businesses about their employment count and at least for the respondents on this survey, they only reported about 1% job loss a year later.

Did employers take advantage of the help offered to them? It seems by and large that YES, employers did participate in one or more of the unique programs that were offered. By far, the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) was the largest with 74% of survey respondents participating in Round 1 and 37% in Round 2. The second most popular program was our local Richland County Grant Program with 31% participating in that. There were many others who participated in other federal, state, and local programs as well. We heard from many that these programs kept them open, so we are glad people were able to plug into them.

How bad was 2020 financially for businesses? Believe it or not, we had 29% of survey respondents say that their 2020 year was better than 2019, which was certainly good news. But that means the other 71% - the vast majority – had varying degrees of impact. About 30% of businesses reported that they were 1-20% off a previous year. Another 20% reported being down 21-40% and the remaining 15% were 41+% off the previous year (with 3% just starting in 2020).

How are businesses feeling? Between our last survey (in July 2020) and this current survey, we saw a big improvement in how businesses were forecasting their ability to "weather the storm". Currently we had 60% of respondents reporting they felt "Confident" which compares to just 40% last summer. We had another 33% report they were "Tentative" when they looked ahead, compared to 47% last summer. And 6% reported they were "Worried" currently, compared to 11% last summer. So as time has gone on, the outlook has improved, which is definitely good news as we look ahead.

We're clearly not out of the woods yet, with the pandemic or the corresponding economic crisis. But the light at the end of the tunnel is growing stronger day by day. I promised you at the beginning of this that the Chamber would be here with you every step of the way, and we are not done yet! We are working hard to continue to help you bounce back and thrive. If there is a way that we can help, don't hesitate to pick up the phone and have a conversation with us. If you are thinking it, others probably are, too. Onward!

YOUNG
Academy

In November 2020, we kicked off the sixth year of Young Entrepreneurs Academy in Richland County. On Tuesday, April 23 we had the 6th Annual YEA! Investor Panel Event. These five young entrepreneurs pitched their business ideas to a panel of local judges. The judges had the hard task of determining how much start-up funding each business would receive. At the end of the night, we awarded $4,000 between the five businesses. Please take a moment to visit YEA Richland on Facebook and watch the video from that evening. You can leave comments for the young entrepreneurs and share in their success. We are happy to announce that Caleb Keller, owner of Pathify, will be representing YEA ! Richland at Saunders Scholar National Competition on June 26. Stay tuned to next months edition as we provide more details about that event.

Spring is springing (we hope), and young people in Richland County will soon be done with school for the summer. There definitely isn't a shortage of need in our communities for workers - and we're working to make sure that our students are aware of all the work opportunities that are available to them.

We are holding our Student Job and Career Fair from 1pm to 4pm on May 6 at the Mid Ohio Conference Center. There will be 47 employers and agencies in attendance, aiming to capture the available talent and assist young people and identifying opportunity. This event is open to all High School and College students - please help spread the word to the youth in our community.

Along with this event we are excited to announce the Richland County Youth and Family Council Summer Youth Program. RCYF is actively seeking businesses who are interested in participating by being a worksite, as well as supervisors to support these young people as they work through the summer. If you are interested in participating, contact Teresa Alt at teresa.alt@jfs.ohio.gov.

More information about both these great opportunities for students can be found inside this newsletter.
